Blokart sailing and the Canterbury blokart Club Inc.

The blokart® was invented in 1999 by Paul Beckett, a Kiwi. Blokart sailing is an exhilarating sport across all levels of participation, and it attracts people of all ages and sailing ability. With frequent wind and a variety of locations, Canterbury is an ideal place for blokart® sailing.

The Canterbury blokart Club Inc. was established in 2004 to further the sport through racing, non-competitive sailing events, coaching and a range of other Club activities. The Club meets most Sundays at the former RNZAF Base Wigram, now home to the Air Force Museum of New Zealand*. The area used by the Club includes the hangar apron and runway taxiway. The site is owned by the New Zealand Defence Force. Informal sailing is occasionally held at the beach. Tech-nights, training days and other activities help Club members learn about sailing theory and practice, blokart® maintenance, racing rules and blokart® equipment and accessories. Regular social events for members and their families are also held.

*The daily fee for Club members to use Wigram is $10.00 per blokart. This is paid on the day of sailing. The fee is collected by the Club on behalf of the AFMNZ.

Keen to give it a go?

Contact the Club (secretary@canterburyblokart.co.nz) to arrange a sail. $25 will give you, at the very least, 30 minutes of unparalleled thrills ... and hopefully no spills! For your protection you will be required to wear a helmet, gloves, hi-vis vest and enclosed footwear. The safety gear will be provided along with friendly and helpful advice on how to get moving confidently and securely.

How to find us: The vehicle entrance to where the Club sails is opposite 12 Harvard Avenue and next to Archives NZ, 15 Harvard Avenue. Keeping to the right, drive toward the control tower where you will see blokart sailing activity. Park where you see other vehicles parked. Please identify yourself as a visitor and ask to speak to the Officer of the Day (the OOD) or the Secretary.
